

Satoshi Yasukochi

Nagano Children's Hospital

Japan

Graduate from Shinshu university, Japan in 1981.

Trained in Yokosuka Naval Hospital as an intern in 1981-1982 then had a residency of general pediatrics at Shinshu university in 1982-1987. From 1987 to 1989, had a clinical fellow of pediatric cardiology at Tokyo Women's Medical university (TWMU) and became assistant professor of pediatric cardiology of TWMU in 1989. In 1990-1993, had a research fellow at department of Anesthesiology at Johns Hopkins university and Cornell Medical University New York Hospital. From 1993 to 2001, worked as a subdirector of department of Pediatric Cardiology in Nagano Children's Hospital then promoted to director of same department from 2001. Currently serves as a director of Heart center and Echo-imaging center of Nagano Children's Hospital from 2014.